Overview

James is a leading commercial silk. Described in the directories as “phenomenal”, “exceptional”, “supremely talented”, “incredibly intelligent”, “wonderful to work with” and “one of the stars of his generation”, James’ “superb reputation and first-class abilities” see him regularly instructed in many of the most high-profile and valuable commercial disputes and appeals.

James regularly appears in the largest and most complex Commercial Court cases and appeals. His cases are typically high-value and factually and legally complex. Many of his cases have set new legal precedent and a significant number have featured in the Lawyer Top 20 for the relevant year. He has extensive experience of leading teams of juniors as well as appearing as sole advocate.

James is recommended by C&P and L500 as a leading silk in commercial dispute resolution, banking and finance and commercial fraud. He has been rapidly promoted through the tiers since taking silk in 2022. Prior to taking silk, James was a star junior, one of the small handful ranked in C&P band 1 for both commercial litigation and banking and finance.

James’ practice encompasses all major areas of commercial law. His experience covers general commercial litigation, fraud, banking and finance, aviation, private equity/venture capital, group litigation, energy, technology, professional negligence, shareholder disputes and restructuring/insolvency, together with jurisdiction, injunctions and enforcement.

James also has extensive arbitration experience under LCIA, ICC, DIAC and/or ICSID rules. He is currently acting in several substantial arbitrations and this is an increasing part of his practice.

He also advises on private law matters relevant to complex and valuable tax disputes.

James works actively to support diversity and retention. For many years he has been involved in mentoring programmes and various COMBAR diversity initiatives. He currently sits on COMBAR's EDI committee. He is also committed to pro bono work, with his recent pro bono work including an important Administrative Court decision setting new legal precedent as regards the powers of the financial ombudsman to re-open complaints.

Examples of Recent Cases

Banking and Finance

James is well-known as a leading banking and finance silk and is ranked in both major directories as a leading silk in this area. Prior to taking silk in 2022, he was ranked for many years in Band 1 of the junior tables.

Notable examples of James' banking cases are set out below (see also James' arbitration, commercial dispute resolution, and civil fraud webpages). James is also acting or advising on many other matters.

- Investec v Protopapa and Chatila (2025–): James is acting for Investec (instructed by Sidley Austin) in its claims for substantial loan sums due against two high-net-worth Swiss individuals. A jurisdiction challenge was heard in October 2025; judgment awaited.
- Red UK Holdco Ltd v BPL Holdco S.a.r.l. (2025): James acted for a vehicle of Oaktree, instructed by White & Case, in this major expedited trial relating to the €450mn sale of an Italian Bank. The case concerned allegations that the purchaser fund was entitled to terminate the SPA following interventions by the Bank of Italy. Case settled.
- Frasers v Morgan Stanley (2023–2024): James acted for the defendant bank, instructed by Clifford Chance, in this major piece of Commercial Court litigation relating to a US$1bn margin call made by Morgan Stanley on Frasers PLC, the company owned by the well-known sportswear magnate Mike Ashley. Case settled following a three-week trial.
- BNPP v Uro (2022-2024): James acted for the defendant (a company owning the title to Banco Santander's European bank branches), instructed by Humphries Kerstetter, in this major case concerning the enforceability of a €250mn 'bond make whole premium' allegedly due under a €1.5bn securitisation issued by Uro in order to refinance its liabilities. Case settled shortly before a three-week trial in late 2024.
