Overview

Rhodri Davies has a wide-ranging commercial practice in both litigation and arbitration. He is regularly instructed in the fields of banking, derivatives, energy and professional negligence and also in respect of large, complex investigations such as the Leveson Inquiry. He was appointed a Recorder (for civil cases) in 2004 and a Deputy High Court Judge in 2010 and held those positions until 2019. In addition to his practice as an advocate, Rhodri sits as an arbitrator when appropriate and has also provided expert evidence on English law in foreign proceedings.

Rhodri's recent work includes;

High Court derivatives claim [2024]

Instructed on behalf of the Claimant Dutch housing association against Barclays Bank in the last of a series of claims by the housing association to recover losses on ultra vires and unauthorised derivative trades. A settlement was reached shortly before the start of the trial.
