Overview

Richard Mott has a broad practice in commercial litigation and international arbitration (inc. LCIA, ICC and UNCITRAL rules). He has a particular focus on cases concerning civil fraud, banking and finance, energy, and general commercial disputes.

He also has significant experience of seeking and resisting injunctive relief, and of jurisdiction challenges.

Richard is currently acting, amongst other cases: as lead advocate for the claimants in a substantial (over £100m) high-profile shareholder class action against Boohoo Plc; for one of the claimant groups (led by Andrew Onslow KC, and leading Usman Roohani and William Birch) in the market-leading shareholder class action against Glencore Plc; and as lead advocate (leading Lauren Hitchman) for the Liberal Democrats in a dispute with a former senior member.

Richard has recently acted: with Camilla Bingham KC and James MacDonald KC for Morgan Stanley in Fraser v Morgan Stanley, resisting a substantial high-profile claim (4 week trial in Spring 2024); with Anna Boase KC in Mahtani v Atlas Mara, successfully resisting claims of over $100m arising out of a Zambian bank's sale (4 week trial in late 2023; [2024] EWHC 218 (Comm)); in the Court of Appeal (leading Harry Stratton) for the successful appellants in Gorbachev v Guriev [2023] 1 WLR 2457; with Camilla Bingham KC, in heavy, linked Commercial Court and ICC arbitration proceedings in relation to a high-value stake in a Mexican online gambling company; with Camilla Bingham KC, for the claimant in proceedings commenced in Bermuda arising out of an alleged unlawful means conspiracy to appropriate an interest in an African metals mine, claiming hundreds of millions of dollars (1-week jurisdiction challenge in Summer 2023); and for the Financial Conduct Authority, in three confidential Enforcement cases involving alleged dishonesty and lack of integrity in relation to the pensions sector.
